Excerpt: .to mar those rites, and slay us both: But one hope linger d yet, --he might relent, And with that hope, to meet him there I went. Father, he spurn d me!--frantic as I was, And kneeling at his feet, the sole loved cause Of all my anguish. Then I deem d I could See him die inch by inch; and that his blood, Ebbing away thus, could not change my mood. I raised my hand with the intent to kill; But when I look d upon his countenance, Love, in my bosom, reign d all-powerful still; My fearful purpose was subdued at once: H And at his feet, ay, even at his feet--down, Powerless I fell, in long--long--deathlike swoon! I knew no more, --nor know I yet, --for when I waken d from that stupor, he was gone. I know not how he fell;...
