WOMEN AND RESOURCE USE - A STUDY OF RURAL WOMEN IN A SPINY DESERT REGION IN MADAGASCAR

GRIN Verlag Okt 2007, 2007. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 213x149x15 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Bachelor Thesis from the year 2004 in the subject African Studies, grade: 2.1 (68.00), Oxford University, 74 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: In many places throughout the developing world, women have a central role in growing food crops, collecting water and fuel-wood, and using materials from plants, trees, and marine ecosystems to prepare medicines for their families or products for sale in markets (WWF, 2002c). For example, women in sub-Saharan Africa are the backbone of the agricultural sector, accounting for 70% of agricultural labour and being responsible for 60% of agricultural production and 80% of food production (Kabeer, 1994). Yet this critical work is often overlooked and many women have little opportunity to participate in decisions about their community's natural resources or join training and capacity-building initiatives designed to promote sustainable resource management (WWF, 2002c). Having discussed the major areas of rural women's work in Africa and their implications for the environment, this dissertation will explore the role of rural women in Madagascar to exemplify the issues associated with resource use in a biodiversity hotspot. First, general research on the topic will be introduced followed by a specific case study of Antandroy women in Analalo, a village in the Spiny Forest of South-Eastern Madagascar. The dissertation will conclude by examining the importance of women in the use of natural resources and ways in which they could be...
